

Strength-Based Learning Plan: A proposal to dismantle normalcy in schools

“If such a thing as a psycho-analysis of today’s prototypical culture were possible...such an investigation would needs show the sickness proper to the time to consist precisely in normality.”

~ Theodore Adorno, Minima Moralia

“There is no dis/ability without normalcy.” ~ John Harris Loflin

“The problem’s not the student with learning disabilities; it’s the way normalcy is constructed to create the ‘problem’ of the learning disabled child.”

~ paraphrased from L. Davis, “Constructing Normalcy”

“I’m not deaf, you can’t sign. You have a signing disability.”

~ paraphrased from L. Davis, “Constructing Normalcy”

Strength-Based Learning Plan: Normalcy or self-actualization?

A student deemed “Special Ed.” gets an IEP (Individualized Education Plan). Historically, IEP concepts show a pre-determined focus on a student’s weaknesses as compared to the “standards” whether these standards are actual, perceived, or implied.

Informing our conscience

Also, research exposes the socio-political-cultural agendas which purposely leave out race, class and gender, and strength-based views of humanity when developing Special Ed policies. See links to:

- Constructing Normalcy: The Bell Curve, the Novel and the Invention of the Disabled Body in the 19th Century
- The Hunt for Disability: The New Eugenics and the Normalization of School Children

Since IEPs are based on deficit models of students (what they “can’t do”), a Strength-Based Learning Plan (S-BLP) is suggested. Including the special education diagnosis, an S-BLP will also “diagnose” a student’s strengths (interests, talents, and uniqueness), emphasizing what they “can do” and thus mandating services to foster each student’s self-actualization.

- Summary of S-BLP

Dismantling normalcy presents an unprecedented and truly transformational concept which can lead to the reduction of special education referrals and outcomes such as suspensions and expulsions—especially for African American males.

Why a S-BLP is important for Indiana: In 1907 Indiana legalized white supremacy—creating dis/ability and planting the seeds for the creation of Special Education

- In 1907, Indiana passed the world's first eugenics (scientific racism/racial hygiene) law legalizing "normalcy." This law rationalized white supremacy and the sterilization of "mental defectives" and "criminals."
- During the WW II Nuremberg Trials, Nazi doctors testified they used the "Indiana Procedure" as a model for their sterilization program. See slide 14 of the Hoosiers discredit and abandon normalcy PowerPoint.
- Since normalcy perpetuates the myth of the normal child, it defines ableism in schools, and justifies special education placements, especially for Black American students.
  - Therefore, in many ways the S-BLP is a framework helping expose, examine, and challenge the manner in which race/racism clearly impact the special education referral process.
- The S-BLP is a project of achieving racial emancipation and anti-subordination by examining the possibility of transforming the relationship between law and the possible maintenance of white supremacy/racial power over time.
- A S-BLP also focuses exposing race/ableism: shows how forces of racism/ableism circulate inter-dependently, often in neutralized and invisible ways--upholding notions of normality.
- The development of the S-BLP takes place in the shadow of Eli Lilly, a global entity seemingly bent on making pharmaceuticals to normalize all students, especially those with a "sitting disability."

In contrast to past social constructs of race, disability and intelligence based on a deficit model of humanity codified by the 1907 Eugenics Law, the S-BLP challenges the Indianapolis Public Schools and the wider Hoosier community to reconcile its infamous past, and discredit and abandon normalcy, leading the nation to an enlightened view of our human potential.

- Current IEPs focus on deficiencies in order to satisfy the ethos of normalcy that plagues public education. The S-BLP will circumvent and neutralize race, gender, ability, class, and age by creating possibilities for students to leave school with experiences meeting their own standards, developing their passions--fulfilling their uniqueness.

Proposed Action Item Discredit and abandon normalcy

AACI will work closely with Merry Juerling (mjwith3@yahoo.com), co-creator of the S-BLP, to organize a committee of 3 parents of Special Ed students, and 2 Special Ed teachers, and 8 Special Ed students to plan a strategy for introducing and actualizing the S-BLP in 1 IPS elementary school and 1 IPS middle school.

Pre and Post analysis to will be conducted in order to see if the S-BLP made a difference in students' engagement in school and the classroom as well as life outside of school. The beginnings of an extended 5 and 10 year longitudinal study will be made to determine positive or negative outcomes.
